Farnsworth Ranch Gladiolus

*Will Beautify
Your Home Surroundings*

WHAT prettier sight than a bed of Gladiolus? Would that you might see for yourself the many acres we have under cultivation.

Nature seems to have outdone herself in the riot of color, in the exquisitely delicate shadings of Farnsworth Ranch Gladiolus.

Beginning with just a few bulbs, planted with the sole purpose of beautifying the grounds about the Farnsworth Homestead at Lancaster, Mass., the excellent results attained, and their own enthusiasm, has led the Farnsworth family to Make a Business of Raising Gladiolus.

Farnsworth Ranch Bulbs offer a large variety of shades and colors for your selection.

Farnsworth Ranch Gladiolus Bulbs make it possible to bring such proportion of this beauty, as you may elect, to beautify your home surroundings at very small expense.

You will find the raising of Farnsworth Ranch Gladiolus most interesting and fascinating—primarily because these bulbs have a faculty of producing wonderful flowers.

Farnsworth Ranch Gladiolus Bulbs are planted in light sandy loam where plenty of moisture produces bulbs resulting in unusual bloom.

A modern equipped storehouse furnishes storage for Farnsworth Ranch Bulbs at just the right temperature, making them adaptable for forcing as well as outdoor planting.

As Cut Flowers

Gladiolus keep well. In fact, surpass all other flowers. What a pretty sight a vase of Gladiolus in variegated colors proves to be in one's home! There is an atmosphere of good cheer radiating therefrom.

Here's the Way to Keep in Bloom in the Vase Until the Last Bud Has Opened

Cut for vase use when the first bud opens. Leave at least 4 leaves on stem of plant to help mature the bulb. Change the water daily, removing withered portions. Cut an inch or so from the stem daily. When cutting flowers, be careful not to lift or disturb the bulbs.

Exercise this simple care and every bud will open to the very top and your vase of Farnsworth Ranch Gladiolus Blooms will last a week or so to beautify the room in which they are placed. This demonstrates that Farnsworth Ranch Gladiolus keep well.

Gladiolus Culture

Plant 4 to 6 inches deep—3 to 4 inches apart as soon as the frost is out of the ground and until about June 1st. The more attention one gives to cultivation, naturally the better results. Work and fertilize the soil thoroughly.

If stable manure is used, it should be spaded in in the Fall previous to Spring planting. Good results are obtained from the use of commercial fertilizer applied at the time of planting.

Unless the soil is very light and sandy, or the season is abnormally dry, good results should be forthcoming without watering. If watering is done, it should be in the evenings only, and the ground should be thoroughly drenched.

When to Dig and Winter Care

Gladiolus Bulbs may be dug as soon as the foliage begins to turn brown, or after a frost has stopped the growth. Cut the stems off close to the bulb, and place them where they will have plenty of air to dry, preferably in a shaded place. When thoroughly dry the old bulb and roots may be removed easily. Store in a cool dry place where they will be safe from frost.

About Ordering

Let us suggest ordering early. The stock of choice varieties is often limited, and cheaper varieties are in great demand.

Prices quoted are for clean mature stock of sufficient size to produce good blooms. It is not always the large bulbs that produce the best flowers. Some varieties even produce the best flowers from small bulbs.

Every effort is made to keep the stock true to name. Any bulbs not proving satisfactory in this respect will be replaced free of charge. For the prices quoted, bulbs will be shipped PREPAID PARCEL POST to all points in the U. S. A. and CANADA. One-half dozen furnished at the dozen rate. Orders for less than one dollar cannot be accepted.

Order blank will be found in back of catalog.

Remittance should be sent with orders, or before shipment is made. Make all checks payable to the J. E. Farnsworth Co., Inc.

We Wholesale, Too

Prices will be furnished on application to customers desiring to purchase large quantities, planting stock, or bulb-lets of any of the varieties listed.

Gladiolus Blooms

During the blooming season we are in position to supply cut flowers in large or small quantities for decorations or commercial use. We are very careful in selecting, packing and shipping blooms, exercising every care on our part that the Farnsworth Ranch Blooms may reach their destination in A1 condition. Prices will be furnished on application.

American Gladiolus Society

This society now has a large membership. The society issues a monthly "Bulletin" devoted exclusively to Gladiolus. Anyone is eligible to membership and the members have the privilege of asking any questions they wish about Gladiolus, and they will be answered through the columns of the "Bulletin". The "Bulletin" one year and membership is $2.00. Send application to John C. Davis, Secretary, 77 South Ave., Rochester, N. Y.
